

EXCERPT ONLY

October 30, 2006
The Salt Lake Tribune
By Judy Magid

Homes top ‘people’s choice’ poll for architecture in Utah

Stunning. Innovative. Filled with possibility. The adjectives are apt for the American Institute of Architects Utah 2006 awards.... Salt Lake Tribune readers gave two private residences the most votes in a “people’s choice” online poll, a new part of the annual competition that drew 40 entries from 17 Utah-based firms. The top three vote-getters in The Tribune’s “people’s choice” poll, which drew 1,325 participants: The Caroline Lameman/Sweet Caroline House on the Navajo Reservation, Utah Corridor (457 votes)...Hank Louis and University of Utah undergraduate architecture students, architects.